HEADMASTERS MESSAGE

TO THE CLASS OF 1996

Proud and privileged are the two words that immediately come to mind when I consider the four years we have shared, Class of 1996. I have taken great pride in your numerous achievements as well as your ability to overcome challenges that have faced so many of you. And it has truly been a privilege to have shared in your growth and development as you prepare to assume a role of responsibility as adults within your own communities.

This past year has been an extremely important year for Brighton High School. When we opened in August, we were in the midst of final preparations as we prepared to meet the standards set by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges and retain our accreditation. Due largely to your effort and leadership, Brighton High School did meet these challenging standards and maintain its accreditation. We were also the first school to be visited by Dr. Thomas Payzant as he assumed the superintendency of the Boston Public Schools. He observed first-hand your sincere desire to achieve and the quality of the educational experiences that were available to you.

In late November, the entire school community suffered shock and pain when Barrington Nevins, your classmate and an honor student, tragically and needlessly lost his life along with his dreams of achieving success and bringing honor to his family. As you grieved, you also reached out to his family, embracing them and each other with warmth, kindness and generous support. You also quietly promised to keep Barrington's dream alive through your own achievements and successes.

But in addition to reflecting on this past year, it is also important to look to the future. The 90's has been a decade of extraordinary change throughout our nation and the world. The advances in technology have created the need for new skills and a greater competency from our work force if we are to compete in a global economy. In addition, urban areas throughout the nation require a commitment from all of us as we strive to insure their vitality and economic success. Adequate health care and other human services must be made available to all. Most importantly, through your own actions, you must work to insure that each man, woman, and child is treated with dignity and respect and is able to live in harmony.

These are enormous challenges. But I am confident that each member of this class has the ability and courage to face and conquer each challenge that awaits you. It has been rewarding and exciting for me to observe you mature and assume greater responsibility as you prepare for the next chapter in your lives. My very best to each of you as you prepare to make your dream a reality.

Sincerely,

Juliette D. Johnson
